JOHNNY WONDER

A. You know that rain falls from clouds. Water is constantly evaporated from the earth's surface by the warmth of the sun. The invisible water vapor is carried upward by the warm, rising air. When the air cools, some of its moisture condenses into tiny droplets of water, which collect to form the clouds we see in the sky. As the air continues to cool, the clouds become thick rain clouds that darken the sky. The air movement in the cloud causes the droplets to bump into others. Some of the bumping droplets join together and form drops big enough to fall as rain.

You can win a World Almanac if your question is selected. Send your name and age to JOHNNY WONDER, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1200, Santa Cruz, CA 95060.
